

Acknowledgements

There were many people involved in the project. We try to list them all; however, if you were involved and not on the list then email me ASAP (As Soon As Possible) and I will correct the oversight.

This document is written by the four authors, William Gasarch, Erik Metz, Jacob Prinz, Daniel Smolyak. We omit the phrase we thank since it is implied.

1. Rochelle Kronzek. She is our contact at World Scientific. She had published Bill's previous book Problems with a Point: Exploring Math and Computer Science by Gasarch and Kruskal, and for that reason got him an invitation to Gathering for Gardner 12. It was at this conference that Bill saw a pamphlet with The Muffin Problem.
2. Alan Frank. He first devised The Muffin Problem.
3. Jim Propp for telling us the prior work on the Muffin problem.
4. Veit Elser, Erich Friedman, and Caleb Stanford for their prior work in the area. Caleb helped us write the section on his work.
5. Stephanie Warman for her awesome muffin code. Much of the code at the MUFFIN website is hers.
6. Guangqi Cui, John Dickerson, Naveen Durvasula, Naveen Raman, and Sung Hynn Yoo who helped us develop some of the techniques. They are co-authors on a muffin paper [?] that appeared in the Fun with Algorithms conference.
7. Saadiq Shaik and Daniel Wei who wrote some code for us.
8. Ken Tan and Alex Kwang who worked out, by hand, some formulas for us.
9. Scott Huddleston and Richard Chatwin for sharing their excellent work on the muffin problem with us.
10. Sofia Bzhilyanskaya, Doug Chen, Yunseo Choi, Nathan Grammel, Lexa Hummel, Donald Knuth, Clyde Kruskal, Patrick O'Toole, Sachin Pandey, and Alex Zhang for helpful conversations.

11. Doug Chen, Yunseo Choi, Nathan Grammel, Nathan Hayes, Lexa Hummel, David Marcus, Leenah Shalhoub, Patrick O'Toole, and Stephanie Warman for proofreading and checking.
12. Bill thanks Lance Fortnow for helping write and perform the song Muffin Math which you can see on YouTube here:
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4xQF1sK7jKg>
13. Bill thanks Darling, who put up with him talking about muffins for three years. Co-authors Daniel, Erik, and Jacob thank their suite-mate Robby, who put up with them talking about muffins for three years.